COURSE DESCRIPTION

Examination of the biochemical and physiological roles of vitamins and minerals in humans. Micronutrient deficiency and toxicity syndromes, inborn errors of micronutrient metabolism, and the roles of micronutrients in health and disease will be discussed. Recommended Prerequisite: NUTR Masters Program students or instructor's consent.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

This course is designed to give the student a more detailed and advanced knowledge of nutrition with special emphasis on integrating the principles of nutrition and biochemistry. Upon successful completion of this course the student should be able to:

- Explain the historical context of the essential micronutrients.
- Identify recommended dietary intake levels of essential micronutrients for various age and gender groups.
- Describe the currently available methods of micronutrient assessment and critically evaluate their strengths and limitations.
- Describe the processes of digestion, absorption and metabolism of selected micronutrients.
- Identify food sources, physiological functions, deficiency symptoms and toxicity risks of selected micronutrients.
Explain the potential association between micronutrient intake (at both physiological and supraphysiological doses) and disease states.

Identify the physiological functions and potential health protective capacities of selected non vitamin and mineral phytonutrients.

Demonstrate the ability to critically evaluate scientific literature (i.e., research studies) related to micronutrient intake and metabolism.

REQUIRED READINGS

- Gropper SS and Smith JL. Advanced Nutrition and Human Metabolism 7th West Publishing, 2018
- Articles pertaining to specific topic areas will be available via Canvas

COURSE CONTENT/LEARNING ASSESSMENTS

- Exams: There will be four exams each worth 100 points (see calendar for exam dates). Exams will be a combination of multiple choice, true/false, short answer and essay. All exams are administered through Uonline (https://uonline.utah.edu). You must register for a location and time for each exam prior to taking the exam. You can find registration instructions on Canvas. (note the "due date" is the first day the exam will be open. You will have five days to take the exam (Monday-Friday).

- Quizzes: There will be eight quizzes each worth 10 points distributed throughout the semester (generally pertaining to each module) to assess your understanding of the material covered in each major topic area. The quizzes will be timed, open-book and open-note and will be administered on CANVAS under the quiz icon.

- Phytonutrient Handout: In the broad sense of the term, a phytonutrient describes any nutrient that is derived from a plant. Thus, based on this description, vitamins and minerals would fall under the category of phytonutrients. When most people think of phytonutrients however, they think of non-vitamin and mineral nutrients (e.g., lycopene, allicin, sulforaphane, etc). These non-vitamin and mineral phytonutrients are gaining increasing interest from the scientific community and becoming increasingly popular among the general public. Each student will choose one phytonutrient (from a list provided) to create a one-page informational (client-centered) handout. Details for the assignment will be posted on Canvas.

- Micronutrient Research Controversy: Research regarding micronutrients is highly controversial. There are a number of reasons for the controversial research findings; however, more often than not, it is due to methodological differences in study design. For this assignment, students in groups of two will select a controversial topic related to vitamin/mineral metabolism; review the research and come to scientific conclusion that will be presented to the rest of the class. More detailed instructions along with a sign-up sheet will be provided on Canvas early on in the semester.

- Micronutrient History Paper: The science of nutrition has advanced considerably over the past 75 years and continues to evolve. This assignment will allow students to explore the historical underpinnings of a micronutrient of his or her choice and compare the state of knowledge during the period of time that the micronutrient was “discovered” to what is known about the micronutrient today. Specific instructions will be posted on Canvas.

- Micronutrient Outline: Along with the micronutrient history paper, each student will be responsible for preparing a one-page outline of the vitamin or mineral chosen for the history paper for distribution to the rest of the class. Specific instructions along with a sign up sheet will be posted on Canvas.

- Discussions: Throughout the semester I will post journal articles that cover recent research on a particular micronutrient. We will discuss some of these in class and some will be topics for online discussions. More details can be found on Canvas under the assignments tab.

COURSE RESPONSIBILITIES

Online courses require significant self-motivation. Online courses are different than on-campus courses and online learning is not ideal for everyone. Some lessons take a considerable amount of time to complete. Please note that not all modules are created equal. Some may take a bit more time than others. Some people believe this to be a much easier way to study this subject than in the on-campus framework. Others may feel very intimidated at first. Be patient as you work your way through the first few modules. If you are serious about the material, you will learn as much as, if not more than, most on-campus students about this subject and develop reading and communication skills that are vital to the workforce of the 21st century.

- Electronic or equipment failure: It is your responsibility to maintain your computer and related equipment in order to participate in the online nature of the course.

- Document archiving: You are responsible for making sure your assignments, including attachments, are received before the deadline. Students are also responsible for ensuring that the documents submitted are the correct document to be graded.

- Naming conventions and software type: You are responsible for submitting the assignment with the required naming convention, correct file extension, and using the software type and version required for the assignment. See assignment instructions for acceptable formats.

- Classroom equivalency: Discussion threads, e-mails, and chat rooms are all considered to be equivalent to classrooms, and student behavior within those environments shall conform to the University of Utah Student Code. Specifically:
  - Posting photos or comments that would be off-topic in a classroom are still off-topic in an online posting.
  - Off-color language and photos are never appropriate.
  - Using angry or abusive language is called "flaming", is not acceptable, and will be dealt with according to the Student Code.
  - Course e-mails, e-journals, and other online course communications are part of the classroom and as such, are University property and subject to GRAMA regulations and the Student Code. Privacy regarding these communications between correspondents must not be assumed and should be mutually agreed upon in advance, in writing.
INSTITUTIONAL POLICIES

Drop/Withdrawal Policies

Students may drop a course within the first two weeks of a given semester without any penalties.

Students may officially withdraw (W) from a class or all classes after the drop deadline through the midpoint of a course. A “W” grade is recorded on the transcript and appropriate tuition/fees are assessed. The grade “W” is not used in calculating the student’s GPA.

For deadlines to withdraw from full-term, first, and second session classes, see the U's Academic Calendar: Academic Calendar

Plagiarism & Cheating

It is assumed that all work submitted to your instructor is your own work. When you have used ideas of others, you must properly indicate that you have done so.

Plagiarism and cheating are serious offenses and may be punished by failure on an individual assignment, and/or failure in the course. Academic misconduct, according to the University of Utah Student Code,

“...Includes, but is not limited to, cheating, misrepresenting one’s work, inappropriately collaborating, plagiarism, and fabrication or falsification of information...It also includes facilitating academic misconduct by intentionally helping or attempting to help another to commit an act of academic misconduct.”

For details on plagiarism and other important course conduct issues, see the U's Code of Student Rights and Responsibilities: Code of Student Rights and Responsibilities

Safety at the U

The University of Utah values the safety of all campus community members. You will receive important emergency alerts and safety messages regarding campus safety via text message.

Addressing Sexual Misconduct

Title IX makes it clear that violence and harassment based on sex and gender (which includes sexual orientation and gender identity/expression) is a civil rights offense subject to the same kinds of accountability and the same kinds of support applied to offenses against other protected categories such as race, national origin, color, religion, age, status as a person with a disability, veteran’s status, or genetic information.

If you or someone you know has been harassed or assaulted, you are encouraged to report it to university officials:

Undocumented Students

Immigration is a complex phenomenon with broad impact—those who are directly affected by it, as well as those who are indirectly affected by their relationships with family members, friends, and loved ones. If your immigration status presents obstacles that prevent you from engaging in specific activities or fulfilling specific course criteria, confidential arrangements may be requested from the Dream Center.

Arrangements with the Dream Center will not jeopardize your student status, your financial aid, or any other part of your residence. The Dream Center offers a wide range of resources to support undocumented students (with and without DACA) as well as students from mixed-status families.

Inclusivity at the U

The Office for Inclusive Excellence is here to engage, support, and advance an environment fostering the values of respect, diversity, equity, inclusivity, and academic excellence for students in our increasingly global campus community. They also handle reports of bias in the classroom as outlined below:

Bias or hate incidents consist of speech, conduct, or some other form of expression or action that is motivated wholly or in part by prejudice or bias whose impact discriminates, demeans, embarrasses, assigns stereotypes, harasses, or excludes individuals because of their race, color, ethnicity, national origin, language, sex, size, gender identity or expression, sexual orientation, disability, age, or religion.
