La Chicana

Course Description

This course is an interdisciplinary exploration of La Chicana through feminist scholarship. The course will begin with the historical groundings of Indigenous, Mexican, and Mexican American women, as we consider the emergence of Chicana Feminisms and Women of Color Feminisms. We will trace the term “Chicana” from its genesis to its current moments to examine contemporary explorations of race, gender, sexuality, labor, diaspora, borders, land and environmental in/justices as cultural, structural and agential processes on the development of La Chicana as a site of struggles in the U.S. and globally.

For information contact: Silvia.Solis@utah.edu 801-581-5206
Ethnic Studies  BUC 308