Investigate the organization and distribution of global political systems, including their impact on other spatial components of modern societies and cultures.