COMMUNICATION 3290 (3 CREDITS)
NATIVE AMERICAN ACTIVISM
Spring 2020 T/H 3:40-5:00pm
Dr. Danielle Endres
Professor of Communication

- The class will be focused on analysis of various texts produced by indigenous North American social movements, activists, and protestors.

- Highlighting Native indigenous perspectives, the course also includes: discussion of how these activist movements relate to U.S. society as a whole; analyzing the social structures that indigenous activists are challenging; and discussion of the dynamics of racism, stereotyping, discrimination, assimilation, and several other topics related to diversity.

- Tecumseh’s resistance, the American Indian Movement (AIM), Columbus Day protests, nuclear decolonization, indigenous environmentalism, the Dakota Access Pipeline Water Protestors, Idle No More, Native mascots & symbols (including the Utes nickname), and more will be covered.

For more information contact: danielle.endres@utah.edu